

Cornwall's Deputy Police Chief Pleased That Inquiry Finds No Evidence Of Cover-Up

Cornwall AM 1220

December 15, 2009 — With hundreds of pages to read, Cornwall's deputy police chief had little to say about the final report saying there's a lot of information to digest. But, Danny Aikman did tell AM 1220 News he is happy the commissioner found no evidence to support the allegation of cover-up. (Hear audio clip below)

Audio clip transcript:

“We were quite pleased to see that the commissioner found that there was no evidence to support a conspiracy. that was one of the initial points of the calling of the Cornwall Public Inquiry was the issue of a conspiracy between the Cornwall police and the diocese to cover up allegations of sexual abuse of young people, and we are pleased to see that commissioner concluded there was no evidence to support that.”
